3.2 (Max of 2 points)

Member health & fitness is considered (pre-season conditioning, hiking activities, tips on exercising or any other sport preparation for skiers to support their skiing and fitness in general)

3.3 (Max of 4 points)

Ski & sports safety is valued (avalanche awareness, helmet usage, skier codes, or any other equipment, environment, or behavioral related safety information is made available to members).

3.4 (Max of 4 points)

Members are valued through publicized recognition programs (service awards, personal dates such as birthdays, etc.).

4.0 Charities and Programs

4.1 (Max of 5 points)

Philanthropic efforts for the ski community or home community are valued and made evident (volunteerism or donations are made to local non-ski club efforts).

(Max of 3 points) Involvement in special sub-programs within the club (These could be youth, disabled, elderly, singles, or other types of special divisions within the club itself. This category is not to add more points to those clubs who are considered a specialty club. Example: if the ski club is for singles, then they may not receive points for their involvement in a singles program here, but they could receive points for their involvement in a sub-program for disabled skiers. Award points only for sub-programs)

4.2 (Max of 4 points) Accessibility is valued and efforts are made to welcome and accommodate skiers and members with disabilities (this could include preparing the website for screen readers, providing printed materials in Braille, providing volunteer blind skier guides, people to assist skiers with disabilities, or ski-buddy volunteers, etc.)

5.0 Bonus section

5.1 (Max 10 points). Exceptionalism This category is to be used in awarding this club points for something not covered in the above criteria, yet is so special as to need recognition. This may include an exceptional dedication to a community event, participation in something like the Special Olympics, a one-time special event, or other special activity that sets this club apart from normal ski clubs, making them truly outstanding. Please note this exceptionalism below so that a special mention can be made at the time of the award.
